disclaimer: I'm sure this list could be better. Hey, you're always free to make up your own list. Things I thought about here were a variety of fairly regular harmonic motions, with out too many repeats. I think if you spent time finding all of the fairly vanilla tunes that went to all different places on the bridge you would be onto something. Try thinking of the chord names while singing the roots, and seeing them somehow in your head. I could imagine spending a long time on just the Blues and Rhythm Changes. If you start to get bored, you could always arpeggiate the chords, or try substitutions, or find something else to practice.
